NAZIS LOSING GRIP ON RUSSIA; FLEEING WEST

Stalin Says Foe Driven from Three-Fourths of Occupied Soviet Territory.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23 — German forces, routed from the great iron city of Krivoi Rog by the Red army yesterday, are retreating southward toward the Bug river, a Soviet communique said today.

Premier Stalin announced in a year the Nazis have been driven from almost three-quarters of the territory they had occupied in invading Russia in the summer of 1941.

During the past 12 months, Stalin said, the Red armies have advanced westward as much as 250 miles in some places."

"It should now be clear to all," he added, "that Hitlerite Germany is advancing inevitably toward catastrophe."

Stalin recounted the triumphs of Soviet arms in a special order of the day commemorating the 26th anniversary of the Red army a few hours after he had announced capture of Krivoi Rog in one of the most decisive victories of the winter offensive.

Four-month Siege Ends

Krivoi Rog with its valuable iron mines was captured after a bitter four-month siege.

"The enemy suffered enormous losses in manpower and equipment," the Russian communique reported. "Thousands of enemy dead littered approaches to the city and its streets.

"Soviet forces captured large dumps of military equipment."

Moscow dispatches said only a narrow escape gap along the lower Dnieper river to the west remains open to the retreating Nazis. Kherson and Nikolaev, the latter city 95 miles southwest of Krivoi Rog at the mouth of the Bug, are probable immediate objectives of the Red army forces, these dispatches indicated.

"The German fascist war machine has been placed by the Red army on the verge of complete defeat," the Soviet information bureau asserted in a broadcast statement.

Close In On Pskov

The Moscow war bulletin said Russian troops pushing southwest from Luga captured the town of Bukino, 51 miles northeast of Pskov, and other units driving west from Lake Ilmen liberated more than 200 occupied centers. Vashkova, 38 miles southwest of Staraya Russa, also fell to the Russians in this 24-hour advance of 19 miles.

Another 100 towns and villages were captured in the Kholm area, on the southeastern end of the 150-mile wide Russian arc converging on Pskov, the communique said, adding that a total of 2,300 Germans were killed and many prisoners taken on the Baltic front.

2 BEACHHEAD BLOWS HALTED

Germans in Need of Breathing Spell After Heavy Anzio Losses.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, Feb. 23—American troops threw back two localized German attacks west of Cisterna yesterday, allied headquarters announced today.

Nazi artillery lobbed shells at the nerve center of Anzio and other beachhead objectives, and 130 German planes hit at ground troops, but the allies countered with 1,600 aerial sorties, and gunfire against enemy troop and vehicle movements.

The Germans tried to infiltrate around Fifth army outposts on two peaks northwest of Cassino, but withdrew under cover of a smoke screen when allied artillery opened fire. Snowfalls hampered movements in the mountains.

British guns shelled enemy troops and vehicles near the Nazis' main concentration point of Carroceto. Allied group troops could see the Germans busily moving their forces in rear areas, indicating they were preparing for a renewed assault after repulse of his second major offensive last week-end.

The communique also mentioned that the heavy bombers had blasted the airfield at Zagreb and harbors at Zara and Sibenik.

Fifty enemy planes were destroyed during the day for a loss of 15 allied aircraft, it was disclosed.

The Germans sorely needed a breathing spell, for they suffered the heaviest casualties of any comparable period of the Italian campaign during their four-day assault from last Wednesday through Saturday.

One American battalion alone counted 500 German dead in front of its position southeast of Carroceto, where some of the bitterest fighting took place.

The German 114th Jaeger (rifle) division suffered particularly heavy losses. These troops were reported to have scattered in panic when allied guns opened up with heavy fire.

FARM WORKER DRAFT INFORMATION ASKED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23 — State selective service headquarters asked local draft boards today to obtain from county agricultural war boards full information on deferred farm workers being considered for reclassification under a recent national directive.

The request supplemented an order last week for all boards to review 2-C and 3-C classifications given deferred farmers and allow them only for those producing by their own efforts a minimum of 16 war units. A war unit is a measure of agricultural activity, such as the care of one dairy for one year.

Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, said revised forms had been furnished county agricultural war boards for use in supplying information on registrants to local draft boards.

Marion, Kenton Coal Company Head Injured

Bruce McVey of Kenton, manager of the Central Coal Co. here and at Kenton, was injured when he was struck by a car at the intersection of Detroit and Franklin streets in Kenton at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. The driver of the car was Earl Painter, 64, of Belle Center.

Mr. McVey was taken to McKitrick hospital where attendants said today he is resting comfortably. His condition is regarded as "not serious" and he may be moved to his home late today.

BRICKER ASKS ORDER IN U. S. GOVERNMENT

Declares Executive Branch in Shapeless Confusion.

(More about Gov. Bricker on Page 2)

By The Associated Press

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 23—Gov. Bricker of Ohio, a candidate for the Republican nomination, says the executive branch of the federal government "as now organized, is a vast labyrinthian, shapeless thing of disorders and confusion."

Bricker asserted here last night the "New Deal" has been, and is, an inefficient, paternalistic, dictatorial and reactionary administration. As a result our institutions of free government are threatened as never before. It is high time that we recognize the trend and chart a constructive program."

The Ohio governor said "independent agencies, boards, bureaus and commissions have multiplied under the New Deal. The list of parent agencies is formidable, but if you add their offspring, legitimate and otherwise, the number runs into the hundreds, yes, even into the thousands."

Asserting that "in spite of governmental confusion and chaos, I am confident that we can find our way out!" Bricker advocated a constructive program of governmental action," and offered "six essentials to the establishment of a sound cabinet government and sane executive administration."

He urged a thorough study of "the entire structure of the hydra-headed executive branch of the federal government; immediate liquidation of all agencies, boards, bureaus and commissions not performing essential government functions; placing of independent agencies under a responsible cabinet member or department head; cabinet members and department heads be chosen on their qualifications for the job; reduction of governmental job holders with "hundreds of thousands of them" sent back to private employment or released to the armed forces, and a "closed working relationship between the executive and legislative branches of the federal government."

GERMANS LOSE 133 PLANES IN BIG U. S. RAID

Losses Heavy as Americans Bomb Nazi Aircraft Factories.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23—American bombers and fighters, striking powerfully from Britain and Italy in the first coordinated assault deep into Germany, crippled enemy aircraft production anew and knocked 133 Nazi fighter planes from the sky, U. S. Army headquarters declared today.

Sixty-one big bombers were lost in yesterday's joint assault, which included diversionary raids by planes based in Italy, the announcement said. It listed 41 bombers lost from the force attacking from Britain, and 20 missing from the U. S. 15th air force based in Italy.

(Allied headquarters in the Mediterranean said only 15 Italy-based planes were lost yesterday, and a spokesman said 12 were bombers. This would make the day's total bomber losses 53.)

Get 310 Enemy Planes

"In three days of record-breaking operations aimed at destroying Germany's capacity to maintain aerial resistance, American air force planes have accounted for 310 enemy fighters," headquarters said, with 153 falling to fighters of the Eighth and Ninth air forces in Britain, 117 destroyed by Eighth air force bombers, and 40 by 15th air force bombers.

The Germans threw up savage resistance as the Britain-based bombers struck the Junkers-88 assembly plant at Bernburg and airframe and component factories at Aschersleben and Halberstadt. The 15th air force bombers from Italy lasted two Messerschmidt factories at Regensburg and bombed freight yards at Petershausen, 20 miles north of Munich.

Heavy bombers flying from Britain bagged 34 enemy fighters yesterday, and their escorts knocked down 59, while the bombers of the 15th air force destroyed 40 Nazi craft.

Other Aircraft Hit

Other enemy craft were hit on the aprons of factories and in parking areas.

A communique said the Eighth and Ninth air force lost 11 fighters yesterday, and two fighters of the force in Italy were missing, for a total days' loss of 74 planes.

(A headquarters spokesman in Italy said three fighters were lost yesterday over the Anzio beachhead area, and 50 enemy planes were downed during the day. Including 40 over Germany and 10 over the beachhead.)

today's German communique asserted 119 allied planes, including 95 four-engined bombers, were destroyed yesterday over Germany.

Loss of 61 bombers over Germany Tuesday is a new record since it is the first figure for combined operations from Britain and Italy of the U. S. strategic air force in Europe.

RAF Mosquitos maintained the offensive during the night, hitting unspecified targets in western and southwestern Germany without loss.

London Bombed Fourth Time in Five Nights

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23—London underwent its fourth air attack in five nights as German raiders broke through the capital's defenses last night to scatter explosives and firebombs at random over the city.

The attack provided one of the fiercest anti-aircraft barrages of the war and searchlights fingered the sky in an effort to spot the raiders which came in singly from various directions.

At one time six enemy planes were caught in the beams of searchlights over different areas of the city.

The first raiders to come over loosed red and green flares which lighted up the target for those that fololwed with their loads of explosives and incendiaries. The glow of many fires started by the attack brightened the sky.

Six Shot Down

At least six of the raiders were shot down, British advices said.

Coastal observers reported British and German coastal guns exchanged salvos across Dover straight early today in one of their heaviest duels in months.

The British guns were in action almost continuously for 30 minutes and scattered an enemy convoy trying to sneak up the French coast between Boulogne and Calais, the observers said.

In all attacks over England last night ten enemy planes were de-

Nazi Effort To Split Allies Doomed To Fail, Stalin Says

Red Leader Awaits Day When Full Power of United Nations Strikes at Hitlerite Germany.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23—All German attempts to "introduce disharmony in the camp of the anti-Hitlerite coalition" are doomed to failure, Premier Stalin told the Russian people today in a special order of the day commemorating the 26th anniversary of the Red Army.

The Russian premier again emphasized his contention Russia has been bearing the brunt of the war effort, but declared:

"All the more hopeless will the situation of Hitlerite Germany be when the main forces of our allies go into action and the powerful and growing offensive of the allied states is launched against Hitlerite Germany.

"It should now be clear to all that Hitlerite Germany is advancing inevitably toward catastrophe. The hour of final reckoning for all the crimes committed by the Hitlerites on Soviet soil in the occupied countries of Europe is approaching."

Stalin's proclamation, which was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet monitor, declared that in one year the Russians had won back three-quarters of the territory taken by the Germans since their 1941 invasion and had advanced westward as much as 1,000 miles in some places.

Stalin said the Nazis, aware of approaching retribution for their crimes, are resisting "with the fury of desperaton" and are fighting for every foot of Russian soil. Therefore, he added:

"We must be vigilant and not allow over-confidence in our ranks, or complacency.

"There has never yet been a case in the history of war when an enemy jumped into the abyss of his own accord. In order to win the war it is necessary to force the enemy to the abyss and push him in."

The Germans, Stalin asserted, are seeking to save themselves by ordering total mobilization in the rear," although Germany's manpower reserves are depleted, and by making desperate efforts to introduce disharmony in the camp of the allies and thereby "drag out the war." He added:

"Hitlerite diplomats are rushing from one neutral country to another, trying to establish contacts with pro-Hitlerite elements, and hinting at the possibility of separate peace, sometimes with our state, sometimes with our allies."

Collection of Waste Paper Scheduled in City Friday

Marion county was all set today to tackle what is currently regarded as one of the most pressing supply problems of the war by gathering waste paper from every home in the county.

In the city, the job will be done Friday with boys and girls of the elementary schools providing the manpower to move the paper from the front porches of Marion homes to their respective schools. Volunteer trucks will be at each school to haul it on to the junkyards, where the schools will be credited with $12 for each ton brought in.

In the rural areas, the schools are handling the collection in the manner most convenient for each school. They will be paid on the same basis as the city schools.

Marion county residents were urged today by the county salvage committee headed by George Alber to perform two easy tasks that will greatly simplify the work of the students.

The first is to tie all available waste paper into 25-pound bundles so boys and girls can manage them.

The second is to have these bundles on the front porch by 8:30 a. m. Friday. The schools and the volunteer truckers will do the rest.

War production board officials have emphasized that waste paper is vitally important to the war effort just now. It is needed to make packing cases to handle munitions, food and other supplies for shipment both to military points in this country and to the fighting zones. Because of the shortage, commercial concerns have been using pasteboard cartons over and over until they actually drop apart. Then they tape them together and use them a few more times.

Mr. Alber today emphasized that Marion county residents will be doing a "double good turn" by cooperating in the waste paper drive since their contributions will help ease the national shortage, and at the same time bring revenue into the hands of the schools for a variety of worthwhile school projects.

President Orders Army Seizure of Los Angeles Plant

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—President Roosevelt ordered Secretary of War Stimson today to take over and operate the strike-crippled Los Angeles municipal water and power department.

A ten-day strike by department employes has left some 160 war plants and 125,000 homes and business establishments without electricity.

While the President frequently has ordered government seizure of plants or industries involved in the war effort, this was the first time he has ordered seizure of any municipal facility.

He said in an executive order "the war effort is being and will be unduly impeded or delayed" by an interruption of operation of the power plants, water works and distribution system of the city.

More than 2,500 of the 5,700 employes of the city water and power department are striking for a wage increase.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles had telegraphed Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson a request the Army take over the municipal department.

In Los Angeles a company official said a union official had

BROMFIELD READY TO SUPPORT G.O.P.

Author Says He Will Back Republican Against 4th Term.

By ROBERT VINCENT
I. N. S. Correspondent

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23—Louis Bromfield, noted author-conservationist and a lifelong Democrat, today declared that he would support Republicans Bricker, Dewey or Willkie against a fourth-term bid by President Roosevelt.

"Never before in my life have I voted a Republican ticket," said Bromfield, who only a short while ago was being urged by Ohio Democratic leaders to run for governor.

"But the time has come when it may be the thing to do for the good of the country. The present administration is tired, confused and disorganized, and we need a strong man for the peace and the

CONGRESS' IRE RAISED BY VETO OF TAX BILL

Doughton Sees Act as Questioning Right of Lawmakers To Write Measure.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Rep. Doughton (D-N.C.), 80-year-old congressional tax leader, stormed back at President Roosevelt's veto of the new revenue bill today, declaring it raises a question of who is to write the tax laws, the President's "irresponsible theorists" or the people's elected representatives.

Doughton, a former proponent of Roosevelt tax policies, declared the President's advisers "seem to have lost patience with constitutional government by law" and "favor government by executive decree."

The chairman of the tax-framing ways and means committee was joined in a blistering statement by Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, Republican leader on the committee.

Together, in a further widening of the schism between congress and the White House, they called upon senate and house to override the veto and retain the "constitutional taxing authority" of congress.

Indications now are that congress will override the veto. The vote is set in the house tomorrow.

Barkley May Join

The President's veto message, which said the tax bill provided relief "not for the needy but for the greedy," set off a congressional revolt that embraced leaders in his own party including Doughton, and Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee. The capitol heard reports that senate Democratic leader Barkley of Kentucky might join in the movement.

On the other hand, Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the house rules committee declared the Constitution gives the President not only the right but "the responsibility and duty" of vetoing legislation he deems not in the best interests of the country.

"The so-called revenue bill," Sabath said, "is a Republican bill, passed with the help of some Democrats."

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich), ways and means member, said "the President has certain constitutional rights, and the veto is one of them. The tax bill is a joker."

Two Principal Contentions

Doughton and Knutson declared the Presidents' position in his veto message "is indefensible." They brought forth these contentions in their joint statement:

Congress gave careful consideration to the administration's request for $10,500,000,000 of additional taxes, and decided such an increase, added to existing federal taxes of $42,000,000,000 and the $10,000,000,000 of state and local taxes, "would be oppressive to taxpayers and dangerous to the national economy."

It is difficult to understand why, if $10,500,000,000 of increased taxes is desirable, an increase of $2,300,000,000 is undesirable. (The latter amount is what they figure the vetoed bill would produce. Mr. Roosevelt contended it would yield less than $1,000,000,000.)

The President's "advocacy of a drastic general increase in individual income taxes on those of small and moderate incomes, is based upon the wholly false assumption that all have benefitted from the war boom and are in an equally favorable position to pay still higher income levies."

The President's proposals "would threaten the solvency of all business and undermine its ability to provide jobs when the war ends. Unless this bill becomes law, the way will be paved for many large corporations to make excess profits out of the war."

"Now that he (Mr. Roosevelt) is informed," the statement concluded, "we trust he will direct the treasury to adopt a more cooperative attitude, and cease trying to obstruct when it can not dictate."

RESIGNS AFTER BITTER ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

Kentuckian Calls Veto Deliberate Assault on Honesty of Congressmen.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky offered his resignation today as Democratic leader of the senate in a vehement protest against President Roosevelt's tax veto, which he denounced as a "deliberate and calculated assault upon the honesty and integrity" of congressmen.

Barkley threw down the leadership after a bitter and sarcastic attack on the President—titular head of Barkley's own party.

He shouted his anger at the President's veto message and at one time termed Mr. Roosevelt's own tax goals as "fantastic."

"Other members may do as they please," Barkley shouted, "I do not propose to take this unjustifiable assault lying down."

As the Kentuckian gave up the leadership he has held since 1937 in the closest harmony with the President, he turned to his colleagues and shouted:

"If the congress of the United States has any self respect left it will override this veto and enact this tax bill into law."

Heavy applause roared out through the historic old chamber as Barkley concluded his speech. Scores of house members standing along the rear wall joined in.

Receives Congratulations

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) grasped Barkley's hand. Other members, including Republicans, rushed over to shake hands, too.

Barkley said Mr. Roosevelt deliberately sought to belittle congress through the tax bill.

"I am one of those who pleaded with the President not to veto this bill," he declared, "I not only advised him not to veto it, I implored him.

"I did not then believe, nor do I now believe that the veto he has sent to congress is justified. "I make no apology for that."

Barkley announced to the senate that he had called a conference of the Democratic majority for 10:30 a. m., tomorrow to select a successor and that his resignation would take effect at that time.

In denouncing the President's tax veto message, Barkley shouted that it was "the first time during my long service, which I had thought was honorable, that I have been accused of voting for a bill that would extend relief to the greedy and impoverish the needy."

Senate Listens in Hush

Barkley's peroration was delivered in a solemn hush.

"For 12 years," he shouted, "I have carried to the best of my ability the flag of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. For the past seven years I have carried the flag of the administration as majority leader of this senate.

"During those years I have borne the flag with pride because I thought that President Roosevelt in himself constituted a dynamic leader in the historic conflict of this country and the world.

"I venture to say I have carried the flag over rougher territory than was ever traversed by any majority leader. Sometimes I have carried it with little help here on the senate floor and more often with less help from the other end of Pennsylvania avenue," referring to the White House.

After Barkley finished, nearly every Democrat and Republican in the senate filed by his desk at the front of the chamber to shake his hand.

Vice President Wallace, who presided during Barkley's remarks, slipped out of the chamber. Senator Murdock (D-Utah) who took over the chair, had great difficulty restoring even a semblance of order.

Barkley said he considered "my conscience and my self-respect" to be "more precious to me than any honor that could be conferred on me by the senate, the people of Kentucky, or by the President" and added:

"In confirmation of that statement, I have called a conference of the Democratic majority for

JAPS LOSING RABAUL BATTLE

Strong Enemy Base Weakens Under Continued Allied Air Attack.

By The Associated Press

Allied air operations yielded evidence today of success in the steady campaign to knock out Rabaul as the pivotal base for war on Japanese territory in the southwest Pacific.

In another significant development, the southeast Asia command announced allied troops are seizing the initiative from the Japanese on the Arakan front in Burma.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported the Japanese failed to send up a single interceptor plane to oppose Sunday's 52-ton bombing of Lakunai airdrome in furtherance of the daily assault on Rabaul at the northeast tip of New Britain island.

Reconnaissance showed the lowest number of planes and ships ever spotted at Rabaul, indicating a withdrawal by the enemy as the result of recent heavy losses. Allied attacks have cost the Japanese 56 vessels sunk and probably more than 300 aircraft shot down in February.

Both in the New Britain area and in the northern Solomons, allied naval and air units added to the toll of Japanese barges which President Roosevelt said yesterday probably amounted to a thousand in the last year, accounting for a large number of enemy personnel.

The Chief Executive praised what he termed amazing cooperation among the armed services in the Marshall islands and Truk

RED MARKS FOUND ON BOMBS IN SWEDEN

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 23 — The Swedish telegraph agency said today that Russian lettering had been found on bomb fragments at Straengnaes, 30 miles west of Stockholm, after a small number of foreign planes dropped explosives there and on the capital last night.

Signal lights indicating that they were trying to land, also were dropped by the planes, and it was believed possible that they were damaged craft which jettisoned their explosives before attempting emergency landings.

Russian bombers raided Turku, on the west coast of Finland 150 miles from Stockholm, earlier last night.

Several of the bombs which fell in Stockholm crashed directly into a summer open air theater, in the only extensive open area in the southern section of the city. No casualties were reported, but hundreds of windows were said to have been shattered.

A Swedish communique identified the aircraft, which came from the east, only as "foreign planes." The number of planes involved was placed officially at three, but private reports said there were 10. One was said to have crashed near Stockholm, but it had not yet been found, and there were no other reports of crashes or emergency landings.

The Swedish home guard was alerted, but air raid sirens were not sounded.

Mid-West Living Costs Show Winter Decline

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23—Living costs in typical mid-western metropolitan areas declined perceptibly between mid-December and mid-January, chiefly reflecting decreases in food costs, William L. Phillips, regional price analyst for the U. S. bureau of labor statistics, reported today.

In Cleveland, for instance, food costs dropped 1.3 per cent in the month ending Jan. 15, lowering the overall index by .5 per cent from the previous month and holding the gain over Jan. 15, 1943 to 3.7 per cent, Phillips said.

The national average of consumers' living costs declined .2 per cent in the same period, and a similar decrease was reported at Cincinnati, where food costs slid .6 per cent. Clothing costs were down .2 per cent from the preceding month. Compared with the previous year, however, Cincinnati living costs were up 3.3 per cent.

BRICKER GIVES VIEW OF ISSUES

Contest Not on Old Party Lines, He Tells Chicago Reporters.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 23—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said in a press conference yesterday he looked upon the campaign as a struggle between the Republican position, rather than party, and the New Deal philosophy.

"It is not a contest between the Republican party and the true Democratic party," he said. "The issue is the New Deal philosophy, including breaking down local government, regimentation, superimposing the executive upon the congressional law-making function, and the necessity for reestablishing constitutional government.

"The Republicans may literally get millions of Democrats' votes—votes of Democrats out of sympathy with the New Deal," he added. "And a Republican victory is essential for the preservation not only of the Republican party but of the Democratic party—preservation of the two-party system."

Bricker said he viewed as "significant" the organization of the American Democratic national committee headed by Harry H. Woodring of Kansas as avowed anti-New Deal Democrats.

The governor asserted he was confident the Republican party would be united, whoever is nominated, on the principles of "restoring a semblance of order in government, eliminating overlapping and excess boards and bureaus, utilization of true state and local governmental functions and reestablishing of constitutional congressional authority."

"I think congress has become revitalized under Republican leadership—one of the finest developments of recent months," he said.

On other subjects he told reporters:

Baruch war-peace reconversion recommendations—"Its objectives are the same as our side has been preaching; encouragement of venture capital, reduction of taxes, elimination of bureaucratic control, orderly handling and prevention of "dumping" of surplus goods."

Income taxes—The law and the forms must be simplified.

The war—It is coming along splendidly now. The admirals and generals who know how must be let alone to direct winning of the war.

International affairs—Winning the war is the prime objective. Settling international problems and agreements can be worked out by the winning nations.

Bricker, enroute to Peoria, Ill., to give a Washington's birthday address before the Creve Coeur club last night, breakfasted here with Illinois Republican leaders.

Bricker and his campaign manager, Roy D. Moore, Canton, O., publisher, said the governor would attend the Florida Republican state convention in Jacksonville March 6, and would speak in Rhode Island March 11, Boston, Mass., March 12 and in Connecticut March 14. He also plans to speak before the John Ericson Republican league in Chicago March 9.

Great Dane Puppy Bears V-Marking

A 10 weeks' old pup, one of a litter of 11 born to Katinka of Vakeeks, Great Dane belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Don Ross of the Edison pike, not only can boast of royal ancestry but also of bearing proof of being a real wartime product—with a perfect victory "V" right in the middle of her back. The pup weighs around 20 pounds now, has a black brindle coat and the V-marking is outlined in a lighter shade. As she grows, so does the "V," maintaining its perfect outline.

The pup—she hasn't any name as yet—and her brothers and sisters can point with pride to their ancestry. Her grandfather, Katinka's father, Champion Wasdan v-Loheland of Vakeeks, born in Germany, holds the record of being the tallest Dane in the world, standing 37½ inches, her maternal grandmother is Sieglinda of Riverside, also a champion, and Katinka's sister is the world's youngest champion. The litter was sired by Leonidas of Helles, owned by Walter J. Grumblatt of 380 East Church street.

The mother of the pups is two years old and this is her first litter.

BRITONS TOLD NOT TO WORRY ABOUT ELECTION

Churchill Hints Jibes at England Old U. S. Custom.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23—Prime Minister Churchill urged his countrymen yesterday not to be "unduly concerned" by what may be said about Britain during this election year in the United States and called for allied unity "in these times of immense exertion and grevious sacrifice."

Election year in the United States, he said in his war review in commons, "is a time when naturally a lot of rough things have to be said about Great Britain and when popularity is to be gained in that vast community in demonstrating Americanism in its highest forms."

"We are, ourselves, well accustomed to the process of elections and I think we should not allow ourselves to be unduly concerned by anything that may be said or written there in the course of the great constitutional process which is taking place," he declared, adding that Britons and Americans are linked together in the noblest comradeship of war under the fire and flail of the enemy."

Dewey Has Large Lead in Poll of New York G. O. P.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 23—The rank and file of Republican voters in New York state give their governor, Thomas E. Dewey, an overwhelming "favorite son" vote for the 1944 presidential nomination.

Governor Dewey receives nearly three times as many votes as Wendell L. Willkie in a survey just completed by the Institute among the New York Republican rank and file.

A cross-section of voters in New York so selected as to meet all scientific requirements were asked to vote on a list of candidates most frequently talked about as possible nominees. The results, based on those who named a Republican, follow. A comparison with the results of a similar survey in September is also shown.

	Today	Sept.
Dewey	57%	51%
Willkie	20	29
MacArthur	16	11
Bricker	4	2
Stassen	2	1

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, received one per cent. In the September survey Governor Warren of California, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio and Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts received a combined total of 6 per cent.

The popularity of Republican candidates has been reported in recent weeks in 13 other states besides New York. The 14 states combined will have a delegate voting strength of 572 at the G.O.P. convention, or more than half of the total of 1,059.

Of these states Dewey has the lead in 11, Bricker in one (Ohio), Willkie in one (Massachusetts), and Stassen in one (Minnesota).

County's 8,091 Jr. Red Cross Members Aid in War Projects

Help Provide Games, Favors and Even Furniture for Fighting Men at Home and Abroad.

This is one of a series of articles reviewing the past year's activities of the Marion County Red Cross Chapter which will launch its annual war fund campaign on March 1. To carry on Marion county's share of Red Cross work here and in the nation and world, Marion county will be asked to raise $56,000 this year.

* * *

More than 8,000 boys and girls—8,091 to be exact,—are members of the Junior Red Cross in Marion county, figures compiled from the annual roll call of last November, show. These hundreds of boys and girls, as their work will show, are availing themselves of the many new opportunities for service, Mrs. J. H. Harmon, chairman of the county Junior Red Cross chapter, states.

The Junior Red Cross works closely with school superintendents in city and county and the local faculty members since its activities are integrated with the community educational program.

Increasingly important functions are being filled by the Junior Red Cross in the broad program of services to the Armed Forces operated by the American Red Cross. Last Christmas the Junior Red Cross, for the first time, furnished handmade Christmas decorations for able-bodied and hospitalized troops overseas. Despite the fact that shipping space was at a premium, the organization was given this commission because of its great value to the morale—and thence to the fighting power—of the troops.

Junior Red Cross members—more than 17,000,000 of them in the nation—have produced millions of comfort articles, games, favors and furniture for the use of soldiers in this country and abroad. Marion Junior Red Cross provided 171 puzzles and games, 24 scrapbooks, 24 crossword puzzle books, 105 joke books, 217 metal and tin ash trays and 6 lap boards for our boys in camps. Christmas boxes were provided for thousands of children in lands where normal Christmas observances were impossible. Our Junior Red Cross packed 54 of these Christmas boxes, 550 menu covers were made for the navy, to brighten the Christmas of fighting men afloat and patients in our local hospital and inmates of our homes were given cheer each holiday during the year by being given favors made by our Junior Red Cross members in Marion.

The American Junior Red Cross, through its National Children's Fund, often makes liberal appropriations to help children abroad. Money has been allowed for English nurseries, children in foreign countries have been given shoes, basic educational supplies were bought for Polish refugee children, and to Russian war orphans went 25,000 packages of hard candy, a gift of the American Junior Red Cross.

"Good will and good deeds are stock and trade of the Junior Red Cross," Mrs Harmon said.

Demonstration Part of Food Fights for Freedom Program.

Approximately 50 persons, representing home economics instructors, food demonstrators and persons interested in breads and food stretchers attended a demonstration given by Miss Alma Swenson of the Wheat Institute in Chicago Monday night at the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. office, as a part of the government Food Fights for Freedom program.

Cheese rollups, meat pie a la mode and a Valentine cinnamon roll were among the foods demonstrated by Miss Swenson. She stressed the importance of bread baking in the home and also encouraged the use of cereals, which are unrationed, as foods and also as stretchers.

As the Food Fights for Freedom program enlarges there will be food canning, pressure cooking and other food and labor saving demonstrations. Any club or organization wishing to participate in the Food Fights for Freedom program may meet at the Gas Co. rooms.

Arrangements for these meetings are in charge of a committee headed by Miss Heidman, Miss Louise Cook, Marion county home demonstration agent and Miss Ruth Kleinmaier, home service demonstration representative for the Marion-Reserve Power Co.

WILLKIE CONSIDERS ENTERING OHIO RACE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23—Wendell L. Willkie's entrance into a delegate contest with Gov. Bricker in the three Cleveland congressional districts was in prospect today after a canvass of sentiment by Ralph H. Cake, Willkie's preconvention manager.

Cake, Republican national committeeman from Oregon, said no formal decision would be made until he consulted with Willkie at the end of next week.

Willkie's manager conferred here with local Willkie supporters and prospective delegates. "Our only reports are from Willkie's supporters who want him to come into this state," Cake explained. "My purpose in being here is to appraise the situation from an accurate off-the-scene viewpoint."

Cake, who accompanied Willkie on his western tour, reported "there is an unmistakable trend for Willkie in the west," predicted his candidate's certain nomination and described himself as surprised at the intensity of enthusiasm for Willkie among regular Republican workers in Cleveland.

"Up to the present time, Willkie has not decided to go into any 'favorite son states,'" Cake asserted.

"The people certainly know where Willkie stands on public questions." Cake added. "When I say I expect the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie, I am very sincere."

Two Ohio Fliers Killed as Bomber Crashes, Burns

MILLBROOK, N. J., Feb. 23—Two Ohioans were killed when a four-engine Army bomber crashed and exploded yesterday in an isolated section of the Kittatinny mountains, state police reported.

The 12 victims, 11 of whose bodies were found in the flaming wreckage, included Second Lieut. Howard Beckman, 28-year-old navigator of Cincinnati, and Corp. Benedict Cicone, of Steubenville.

According to police, Miller admitted he shot Lind in self-defense although he earlier (1) reporters he had warned Lind to "keep away from my wife."

Lawyer Free Under Bond in Slaying of Doctor

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Robert L. Miller, 67-year old Washington attorney charged with the gun slaying of Dr. John E. Lind, 56, psychiatrist, translator and author of children's songs, was free on $15,000 bond today awaiting grand jury action.

Mrs. Miller, 42, who police said was involved in a love triangle which resulted in the shooting of Lind Monday afternoon on a downtown street corner, has refused to testify against her husband.

Witnesses testified that, as the attorney's wife was about to enter Lind's car, Miller strode from a department store doorway, reached into the car and after a brief struggle, fired two fatal shots at the psychiatrist.

Arrested he said he had shot in self-defense.

As Miller and his wife met at the inquest, she tearfully embraced him and said she did not want to testify against him.

WASTE PAPER CRISIS HITS WAR PLANTS

Tons of Waste Paper Wanted At Once for Food and Ammunition Containers

SOLDIERS NEED BOXES—Millions of boxes are needed for the K- and C-Rations eaten by our soldiers on the battle lines.

SAILORS NEED BOXES—It takes tons of paperboard to pack shiploads of munitions for the long voyages to the other side of the world.

THE HOME FRONT NEEDS BOXES—Huge stocks of paper are needed for the containers which have replaced metal for dozens of grocery and household products.

TURN IN YOUR WASTE PAPER... YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS IT NOW!

As you read this, paper mills are closing... others are running only a few days a week. These mills make the paper boxes, cartons, and shipping cases in which our soldiers and sailors get their food and ammunition.

Without these cartons, they won't get vital supplies! Such cartons are made from waste paper pulp.

And it's a fact that there isn't enough waste paper to make the enormous quantities of boxes called for... to keep K-rations and cartridges flowing out to the fighting fronts! There isn't enough waste paper to make the cardboard packages now substituting for metal on the home front!

Right here is where you come in. Clean out your cellar and attic now!

SAVE THESE WASTE PAPERS... Newspapers... Magazines... Cardboard Boxes... Paper Bags... Wrapping Paper... Letters... Envelopes... Advertising Matter.

Keep newspapers and magazines separate if possible. All other paper can be packed together.

This shortage is serious! Never in history has so much waste paper been needed so fast! So tell your friends and neighbors about it. Every boy and girl can be a paper hunter, too!

Above all... don't burn any waste paper. Don't throw any away! Scour every corner... save every scrap.

Keep the paper coming... and you'll keep the war goods rolling! Start now!

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO WITH THEM...

1. Tie your paper in bundles of about 25 pounds each for easy handling.

2. Here is how to turn in your waste paper: Place it on your front steps Friday morning, Feb. 25. If your paper is not collected call 2811, or call your local junk dealer and sell it to him. BUT TURN THE PAPER IN—IT'S SORELY NEEDED!

A PATRIOTIC theme was emphasized in the appointments when the Marion Altrusa club met for dinner last evening in the Marion club room at Hotel Harding. A wide band of blue, sprinkled with white stars in various sizes, extended the full length of the table and the centerpiece was a cluster of small American Flags in a blue container, and flanked on either side with red candles in white holders. Miss Ruth Kleinmaier, president, was in charge of a short business session during which Mrs. C. L. Ross gave a report of a Home Front Pledge campaign meeting she attended as a representative of the club. Mrs. B. L. Wallace directed group singing with Grace Cooper at the piano.

For a surprise program Miss Kleinmaier, Miss Ruth Kramer, Miss Ruth Turner, Miss Alice Dombaugh, Miss Mary Florence Schuler and Mrs. Gerald Walker gave an original play in which the organization and activities of the club were presented. The program was arranged by the educational committee of which Miss Schuler is chairman.

Wounded in the invasion of Sicily where he served with a paratrooper unit, Richard Haders, 19, was returned to the United States and given a medical discharge. When he called his old home in Cincinnati he was unable to locate members of his family. Finally, through a relative, he learned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haders, had moved to Galion. After his reunion with his family he discovered that letters telling of the change in address failed to reach him while he was hospitalized.

The elder Haders is an official of the New York Central railroad. The son now is employed in the NYC freight office in Galion.

NO BREAK IN NAZI HOME FRONT SEEN

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23—How strong is Germany? In the opinion of allied military leaders—an opinion reflected in Prime Minister Churchill's speech in the house of commons yesterday—Adolf Hitler still has a mighty war machine at his disposal.

Here is a picture of Nazi military might as compiled from the opinions of two top allied officers charged with assessing German strength and from information obtained from an anti-Nazi German underground leader aiding the allied cause.

None of these men believe a combination of allied bombing and Russian ground successes will cause a German collapse, although they acknowledge the contributions of both.

None of them believe a civilian revolution is possible at the moment.

All are convinced bloody, large scale battles must be waged on the western front to beat the Germans into submission.

All say German reserve stocks are low, but German ground forces have no serious shortage of war materials.

They agree that roughly German military strength is in about the same relative position as it was in 1917 in the last war.

WANTS WALL FINISHED

By The Associated Press

The flood wall was among public works projects halted by the war production board because of wartime needs for materials and manpower, but McCowen said he had been led to believe recently materials might be obtained if workers were available.

Slight damage was reported today from the high wind which swept the city last night. Aside from small branches which littered the streets in some sections of the city no major damage was reported at the office of the city service director and the county surveyor's office and highway patrol received no calls relative to the storm.

One of three large panels of glass in the rear of the Rexall store on East Center street was blown out and the Engline Co. No 1 responded to a call at 8:30 p. m. when the wind re-ignited a pile of corncobs burned earlier in the evening at the rear of the Betty Zane Corn Products Co. building on Bellefontaine avenue.

Service men from the Marion-Reserve Power Co were called when the street lights in the south part of the city went out about 8:30. The damage was repaired.

Loan Deposits in Ohio Lead All Other States

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23—Ohioans have higher per capita deposits in federal savings and loan banks than do residents of any other state in the nation, says James Twehy, governor of the federal home loan bank system.

"Your associations hold close to $150 in savings and loan resources for every man, woman and child in Ohio," he asserted in an address here yesterday before a meeting of the Ohio Savings and Loan League. "This is a higher per capita than in any other state in the country."

He called Ohio the strongest savings and loan state in the United States, and said the Buckeye fiscal institutions comprised one-sixth of the total assets of all savings and loan institutions in the nation.

Bureau of Efficiency Is Set Up by Congress

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—The ranking Republican member of the house civil service committee, charging a waste of billions of dollars by government agencies, moved today to set up a congressional bureau of efficiency.

Representative Rees (R-Kan), long an advocate of making government expenditures fit congressional appropriations, charged that overlapping and duplication of duties, overemployment and non-essential spending by government agencies were increasing.

The efficiency bureau, responsible only to congress, would investigate and recommend legislation on all nonessential federal expenditures, overlapping and duplication of functions, excessive personnel, procurement and disposal of federal property, personnel and administrative management practices, all requests for appropriations and activities of agencies in excess of their authority.

Cleveland Plant Exceeds All World War I Output

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23 — A single plant in the Cleveland ordnance district produces more guns in two weeks than were produced by all American arsenals in the entire last war, Lieut. Col. P. H. Eickhoff, technician with the Cleveland ordnance district, informed members of the Cleveland Grays.

Col. Eickhoff did not disclose what kind of guns they were. The new 10-inch bayonet, better than the old 18-inch for jungle fighting, is being produced here in enormous quantities, he told members of the 107-year-old military organization last night.

Reams Wants Voting Right Assured Troops

By The Associated Press

OAK HARBOR, O., Feb. 23—Gov. Bricker was urged last night by Frazier Reams, Toledo aspirant to the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, to call a special session of the legislature to enact legislation which would restore to Ohio's election lists all names which have been removed because registrants did not vote in the past two years.

In a prepared speech before the Rotary club here, Reams termed as mere gestures the action taken recently by the secretary of state instructing all election boards in Ohio to restore to the lists the names of service personnel.

By 1808 when further importation of African slaves was prohibited, it was estimated Negroes were being imported to the U. S. at the rate of 20,000 a year.

The Objections Are Questionable

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S precedent-breaking veto of a revenue bill is clearly within his rights. The Constitution gives the chief executive the privilege of returning, with his objections, any bill, just as it gives congress the privilege of repassing a bill after a veto.

Mr. Roosevelt's objections are questionable both as to soundness and motive. In the opinion of many congressmen, when Mr. Roosevelt seizes the occasion of a veto message to inform the American people that congress alone is to blame for the obscure language of income tax returns and that Republicans specifically must be blamed for the withholding tax he is obviously engaged in the most cynical and brazen form of electioneering.

His major objection is the contention that the bill does not impose enough new taxation. It is, in effect, a stabilizing bill; the new taxes it imposes are not of sufficient scope to constitute an increase in taxation. In the judgment of congress—judgment influenced as strongly by politics as Mr. Roosevelt's judgment is influenced in vetoing the revenue bill—no general increase is warranted at this time.

Congress has made one guess, Mr. Roosevelt has made another. As is well known, they are sparring for prestige and, as should also be well known, Mr. Roosevelt is maneuvering for position in his fourth term race. The public, which ultimately must settle all bets in its own cold cash, hardly will be carried away by partisanship in what essentially is a political squabble between Mr. Roosevelt and a congress no longer in a mood to accept his dictation.

Japan Cannot Retreat with Honor

EMPEROR HIROHITO'S order shifting chiefs of the Japanese army and navy after a series of disappointing defeats cannot be overestimated in its implications. These things are not done casually in Japan. A dismissed official does not retire to a little farm to live out his life in peace and quiet. He has been discredited in the eyes of his countrymen. In extreme cases, he must expiate his shortcomings by committing suicide.

There is no way to judge, until events have revealed how the Japanese will react to defeat, the impact of failure in a war with formidable antagonists. If the Japanese code of honor is upheld in the tradition of the samurai, there will be an epidemic of self-destruction after each important defeat. A rebuke from the emperor, explicit or implied, will be a sentence of death. The empire's assassination cultists, who enjoy a status of respectability in their activities, will be busy as it becomes expedient to remove this or that individual for seeming to block national interest.

Of all the major powers, Japan's ability to survive a major war without internal disaster is most questionable, because of a code of honor which bars defeat and retreat. It is an aspect of the war prospect in the Pacific which has been neglected in popular thought, though it seems likely that official strategy may be framed to take it into account. Any blow struck successfully at the Japanese demands explanation as a point of honor, which may explain the weird reports of victories handed out regularly by Radio Tokyo.

Our Greatest Danger

IT IS to be hoped that behind all the brows being corrugated over the Baruch-Hancock proposals for easing the transition from war to peace—when the war has been won—the authors' earnest advice on selfishness will sink in and make a lasting impression.

"The greatest danger that our nation faces, not only in the transition period but also in the longtime future, is the tendency for people to become broken up into blocs and segments, each organized for some narrow interest of the moment," declare Mr. Baruch and Mr. Hancock.

There can be no misunderstanding about what they mean. The best post-war plan in the world isn't worth the paper to write it on unless the overwhelming majority of Americans are willing to get behind it to make it work.

The United States needs a schedule of performance and a platform for reconversion: that is what the Baruch-Hancock plan is. But unless it has a manifesto of faith, no schedule, no platform can be taken seriously. There is no intrinsic merit in systems; the merit is in the people who make systems work. A thousand football teams used the Notre Dame system, but they were not all successful.

For a decade Americans have been hearing conflicting advice about their system. They have been pulled and hauled hither and yon by everybody from National Association of Manufacturers to Earl Browder's pinks. Their system has been doctored and dissected by every quack able to get a hearing in Washington. But now, at last, it is becoming plain that people who have nothing to sell but changes in systems are an expensive nuisance.

Call the system anything or nothing, but insist on faith in the common sense principles of the people. Keep the people together, refuse to let them get split up into factions, and they will find the right answers to their common problems in their own initiative and resourcefulness. That's the only American system there ever has been that was worthy of the name.

Post-War Jobs for Women

By Jane Eads
Associated Press Writer.

WHAT CHANCES will women have for jobs after the war?

Are the thousands of new women recruits to the nation's labor forces going to to be shoved into a corner, or forced to go home?

Or will they get the equal consideration with men which they apparently will demand?

The women's bureau of the U. S. Department of labor estimates there are about 16,000,000 employed women now. It foresees a possible increase to 18,000,000 by the end of the war, followed by a quick drop to possibly 15,000,000 with the coming of peace.

The women's advisory committee of the war manpower commission says any "easy assumption" that a great percentage of the remaining number of these women will return to their homes is to be questioned seriously.

The committee points out that about 11,000,000 women workers are not newcomers to the labor force. The women's bureau says a 25-year survey of women wage earners' problems shows that the vast majority seek employment for economic reasons.

There will be an even higher proportion of unmarried women in the post-war population, and thousands of others will have to assume their newly acquired role of breadwinner permanently because of loss of their husbands in the war.

Others may not be willing to take a back seat on the post-war job-wagon because:

They value their new-found economic status and additional income.

They find themselves for the first time in interesting, better paying jobs formerly reserved for men.

They are learning new skills, discovering new capabilities.

AGENCIES studying the relation of women to the future labor market predict that those who will retire or shift to other jobs will include:

1. The large number of young girls who have temporarily left school and will be drawn back into the educational system.

2. Some older women who during the labor shortage have sought or held onto employment from choice rather than necessity, though there probably will be more women in their 40's and 50's competing for jobs than before the war.

3. Large numbers of housewives who sought employment because of the enlistment or induction of their husbands into the armed services, or because of higher living costs.

Employment of women has been increasing in the United States for more than half a century.

John D. Durand of the U. S. census bureau says, "the trend has been deeply rooted in the social and economic tendencies of the age and would have continued during the 1940's even if there had been no war."

A recent survey by Industrial Hygiene foundation showed that about 80 per cent of the jobs in industry ordinarily done by men can be handled by women.

This may be due partly to the fact that various devices have been introduced to take care of some of the back-breaking lifting and moving which formerly could be managed only by men.

Both industry and labor say women workers have done well.

Industrialists report they are particularly efficient and invaluable on repetitious and monotonous jobs; that while their sick absenteeism is higher, their accident frequency and severity are lower.

A United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers (UAW-CIO) report states:

"In spite of the fact that the majority of jobs in the war plants were new to women, in spite of lack of community housing, child care and shopping facilities, and in spite of the tremendous prejudices against her entrance into industry, the woman worker has taken her place in increasing numbers on the war production lines and has turned in a remarkably good performance."

MEMBERS of the national board of the National Women's Trade Union league appear unalarmed over women's post-war employment problems. They urge that the doors be kept open to the goals of equal pay for equal work, better working conditions and better representation in union organizations.

They foresee a "tremendous chance for women in retail trades and service industries which have been drained and opportunity, too, in the many war plants which will be converted to peacetime purposes, some of them entirely new."

Elisabeth Christman, secretary of the board, says women won't want to go back to household and other low-paid jobs they used to fill unless standards of wages and hours are improved and they receive the same social security benefits other jobs offer, including workmen's compensation and a social status the same as workers in other fields.

However, the women's bureau concludes that:

"Calm recital of facts and figures will scarcely allay rising fear in some quarters that women will take jobs away from returning soldiers. Nor will statistical statements prevent unjust and unfounded discrimination against women workers after war."

Embargo on Spain

By Ned Nordness
Associated Press Writer.

GENERAL FRANCO
Allies Demand His Neutrality

By NED NORDNESS

WASHINGTON—War has come to Spain.

It is a war of political and economical pressure, bloodless but nonetheless throttling, designed by the United States and Great Britain to insure for Spain a role of strict neutrality.

The Allies assert Spain's known friendliness and sympathy for the Nazi cause is manifest in actions outside the realm of a neutral which Spain declares herself to be.

The State Department has listed specific grievances: that Italian warships and merchant vessels remain interned in Spanish ports (six merchant ships since have been released); Spain continues to permit export to Germany of vital war materials such as wolfram, used in making armor-piercing steel; Axis agents are active both in continental Spain and in Spanish African territory, and some Spanish army soldiers are with the Nazi army on the Russian front.

The Allies say, in effect, that Spain must thereafter keep to herself in her own backyard even if the Allies have to fence her in, lock the gate and keep the key.

Squeezed by Oil

The fence is a naval blockade. The threat is that Great Britain and the United States will break with Spain if Spain does not break with the Axis.

Two important moves made in the economic warfare are (1) the United States is withholding shipments of petroleum products to Spain from the Caribbean area and (2) Great Britain tightened the continental blockade by placing an embargo on shipping through the Bay of Biscay to halt possible smuggling of goods from Spain to Germany by way of France.

Lack of oil is causing a crisis. Transportation between Spain's large cities is disrupted and industry has been hard hit by lack of fuel.

A Washington official said the Allies for some time were not in a position to deal with Spain as they wanted.

"During the North African invasion all we wanted was to keep the Franco government quiet and happy. We were afraid the Nazis would force them to join the fight or at least give more aid in their fight against us," he said. "The situation changed decidedly in our favor last year and we brought pressure on Spain to stop giving Germany assistance. We pushed preclusive buying which was for the purpose of keeping Spanish war material from falling into Nazi hands even though we had no particular use for the products."

German Credit Irks U. S.

Spain sent the United States some commodities — tungsten, mercury and cork — when suddenly she gave Germany $40,000,000 credit for war material purchase from Spain.

Now the Allies have told the Franco government bluntly: "Strict neutrality, or else!"

Spain probably will comply with all Allied demands eventually, but her situation is the precarious one of the little youngster placed between two husky rowdies of the block. Spaniards believe that if they acede to Allied demands, the Germans just across the border in France are a more serious physical menace than the Allies on the outside of their relentless blockade.

TAXI?

Finland's Peace Talker

He's Had Lots of Experience Negotiating with Russia.

REPORTS of Russo-Finnish peace talks bring into the headlines one of Finland's ablest diplomats who knowns the Russians well, Dr. Juhu Kusti Paasikivi.

The 72-year-old former cabinet member has been dealing with Russians for nearly a quarter of a century. He vanished from the public view when Finland joined Germany in 1941 in war on Russia.

Sturdily built and stern-faced, Dr. Paasikivi is reported to have the respect of Joseph Stalin even though he once stood up to him and said "no."

A former senator and a member of the old Finnish party, Dr. Paasikivi was a member of the Finnish delegation to the Dorpat conference with Russia in 1920 at which the Soviet recognized the independence of the little Scandinavian republic.

Trusted Russians

It may be that Dr. Paasikivi acquired some stature in the eyes of the Russians then, for he told his compatriots they had nothing to fear from their gigantic neighbor. And this came at a time when most of the world was suspicious of the revolutionary Russian regime.

Events proved him wrong about 20 years later, but no one worked harder than Dr. Paasikivi to reach an agreement.

Then minister to Sweden, he was sent to Moscow in 1939 when trouble brewed with the Russians. He shuttled back and forth between Helsinki and Moscow with proposals and counter proposals.

In the end, Dr. Paasikivi had to say "no" to Soviet territorial demands and war came to Finland. The old diplomat became minister without portfolio in the cabinet during the Russo-Finnish winter war.

Named Minister To Moscow

It was at the peace conference in March of 1940 he is said to have won Stalin's respect.

At least, he was appointed minister to Moscow the next month when diplomatic relations were restored, and the Kremlin approved his appointment.

Finland thoughtfully recalled him in the spring of 1941 and he was not on hand when the little country joined the Nazis in the attack on Russia.

MISSION THAT FAILED — In 1939 Dr. Paasikivi sought peace in Moscow, returned (above) empty-handed.

• • •

Scandinavian observers were not surprised then when he turned up recently in Stockholm to confer with the Russian minister. They consider him the most logical man to enter into negotiations.

It's a Crime

J. Edgar Hoover's FBI Submits Report on Wartime Tendencies of America's Misfit Minority.

By DAMON RUNYON

ACCORDING to the federal bureau of investigation, the offenses which appear have definitely emerged as wartime crimes are rape and aggravated assault. Although other offenses have shown a tendency to decline in number, these have continued to show steady upward trends since the war.

I quote from the semi-annual bulletin of the organization headed by J. Edgar Hoover. It states that rape and aggravated assault for the first half of 1942 were 10.5 per cent and 8.5 per cent, respectively, in excess of the pre-war average for 1939-41.

During January-June of 1943, rape increased 16.3 per cent and aggravated assault 4.9 per cent over the figures for the first half of 1942. When compared with the pre-war averages for January-June of 1939-41, offenses of rape during the first half of this year showed an increase of 28.4 per cent and aggravated assault increased 12.8 per cent.

The FBI thinks the recent disruption in the economic and social status of the populatic in many cities and the resultant increase congestion and personal contact are factors which probably contribute to the rise in assault and rape during boom conditions such as these. Other crimes have declined, which the bureau attributes to the fact that millions of males are in the armed forces and also to the fact that employment has reached unprecedented high levels in the nation.

FOR example, the first half of 1943 showed murders 4.4 per cent under the pre-war average. Negligent manslaughter, which is commonly death in traffic accidents, decreased 9.4 per cent in the first half of 1943 from the average for January-June 1939-41 as a result of the curtailment of the use of automobiles.

Crimes against property, such as robbery, larceny and auto theft, decreased considerably during the first half of 1943, but the decrease began diminishing toward the end of the six months period, this trend being particularly noticeable for auto thefts. Of the cities over 100,000 in population, Los Angeles topped the country with 4,127 thefts, its closest rival being New York City with 2,678.

The bulletin says a comparison of the crime rates for the first half of 1942 and 1943 shows murder increased this year in the West North Central, West South Central and Mountain states. Robberies increased in the New England, the South Atlantic and Mountain states, aggravated assaults increased in the New England, East North Central, Mountain and Pacific states and auto thefts increased in the West South Central, Mountain and Pacific states.

However, the FBI cautions on comparing crime data for individual cities because differences in the figures may be due to a variety of factors. The bulletin says that the amount of crime committed in a community is not solely chargeable to the police, but rather is a charge against the entire community.

THE bulletin mentions a number of factors that might affect the amount of crime in a community. These factors include the composition of the population of a city with reference to age, sex and race, the economic status and activities of the population, educational recreational and religious facilities, the number of police per unit of population, the standards governing appointments to the police force, the policies of the prosecuting officials and the courts, the attitude of the public toward law enforcement problems and even climate.

I can understand the last, all right. The climate in certain sections of this country undoubtedly conducive to crime. In fact after perusing the statistics from cities in which the climate might easily drive a person to misdeeds, I am surprised to note how we crime is kept in check.

He finally walks off the porch and Moosefac pretends to fall asleep. Only pretends. The rea thing is impossible now. He makes mental bet with himself on the next interruption. Tele phone, doorbell, baby, or bird. All wrong, pard It's the man to read the gas meter.

He slams the door on the way out and tha gives the bird an idea. Mooseface sits and stare at the bird. He never has liked that bird any way, and would do something about it if the telephone he was practically sitting on didn' ring and scare him into a fright wig. His good wife thought she would call him to tell him one of the tires was a itty-bitty flat and did he think she could drive home on it? She will be home as soon as he tells her what she should do

So They Say—

The history of the wars in Europe furnishes a complete demonstration that no system of conduct, however correct in principle, can protect neutral powers from injury . . . that a defenseless position and a distinguished love of peace are the surest invitation to war . . . and that there is no way to avoid it other than by being always prepared and willing, for just cause, to meet it.—President James Monroe, President of the United States in 1822.

FATHER FACES TRIAL IN DEATH OF CHILD

By The Associated Press

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 23—John F. Noxon Jr., 47-year-old attorney was escorted to superior court from Berkshire county jail today for his trial on a charge of murder in the electrocution last September of his six-months-old abnormal son, Lawrence.

The corporation lawyer leaned on two canes he has used since an attack of infantile paralysis several years ago.

Showing no effects from his five months in jail, Noxon was allotted a chair in the prisoner's cage in the courtroom where he has appeared many times as a member of the bar.

Within the courtroom enclosure reserved for attorneys, sat Mrs. Margaret Noxon, his attractive 43-year-old wife.

Conviction on the charge against Noxon — murder in the first degree—would carry a penalty of death in the electric chair.

Only five months ago yesterday, little Lawrence met death by electrocution in the spacious library of the large Noxon home.

Noxon's claim is that his child died accidentally by coming in contact with a live wire while his father was fixing a radio.

The indictment returned against the corporation lawyer and Harvard graduate charges he murdered his son by causing a current of electricity to pass through the little fellow for whom child specialists only last summer offered no hope of a normal life.

The strike in its tenth day finds about 160 war feeder plants and some 125,000 homes and business firms without electricity, mechanically milked cows going unmilked and eggs transferred from chill incubators to gas-heated living rooms.

In many homes candles replaced electric lights, radios were silent, vacuum cleaners, toasters and electric stoves were useless. Tons of meat and other perishables in small refrigerators denied current are threatened with spoilage.

The more than 2,500 strikers among 5,700 department employes ask an 8 per cent wage increase or a flat $15 monthly boost for all workers receiving up to $350 per month.

good of the country as a whole."

The author and world traveler asserted he was unequivocally opposed to the 'Henry Wallace idea of government," which he described as "an idea of government by debt, expenditure and limitation of production; by formulae which all too often violate the basic laws of economics."

"As an individual I would vote for a candidate who would return the country to internal order and who could deal intelligently on an international scale with Stalin and Churchill without forgetting our own interests," he stated.

"I'm a registered Democrat and would not become a Republican. But as an individual I could vote for a good Republican candidate, and I think I'm one of six or seven million Democrats who feel the same way. If the G.O.P. nominates a good candidate, they can pick up those six or seven million votes without any trouble."

Bromfield stated flatly that he would support Gov. Bricker as a candidate against President Roosevelt, declaring that the Ohio executive was "an extremely able administrator and a very honorable man.

"His only weakness is his lack of experience in international affairs," he said. "But the most vital thing in the long run may be the re-establishment of internal order."

Bromfield also said that he would back Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York or Wendell Willkie the 1940 Republican standard-bearer, against Roosevelt, but did not elaborate.

"I voted for President Roosevelt three times, but I believe the time has come for a change," he said.

Bromfield now lives on his 1,000-acre model "Malabar Farm" near Mansfield, but spends more than half his time journeying about the country in support of his avocation, soil and forestry conservation.

County Bond Total Reaches $3,850,049

Marion county's showing in the Fourth War Loan continued to become more impressive today when sales Monday totaling $6,965.50 pushed the total up to $3,850,049. The county has pushed its total over the $2,838,000 goal by a margin of more than $1,000,000.

E bond sales accounted for most of Monday's sales, representing $6,225 of the total. This gave the county an E total of $847,215, well beyond the $819,000 quota.

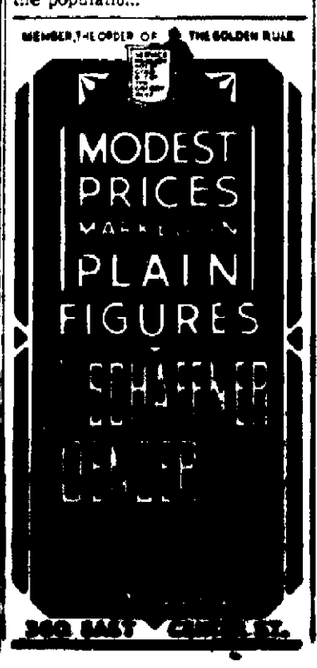
Drive leaders today continued to push E bond sales to round out the women's division project of placing a war bond star in front of every name on the county honor roll. All bonds sold by Feb. 28 will be counted on the county's Fourth War Loan total.

State of Emergency Declared in Philippines

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 — The Japanese-controlled Manila radio said today "a state of national emergency has been declared in the Philippines" following the assumption of new dictatorial powers by Jose P. Laurel, puppet president of the occupied country.

Earlier the Japanese Domei agency declared Laurel had signed a bill giving him unprecedented power under Japanese guidance to "take and adopt any measure that may be necessary" for the "safety, protection and relief of the population."



Churchill Scores Oratorical Victory in Parliament

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

British Prime Minister Churchill's unadorned war review before the house of commons yesterday was another of his masterful efforts and one which must increase allied confidence in the state of our global conflict.

Mr. Churchill is indeed an inspiring speaker. For 27 years now I've been listening in the gallery of commons to his brilliant addresses, or reading them in the world's press, almost hoping whimsically at times that he would display sufficient weakness to deliver a bad one, but thus far he has failed me.

Without encouraging over-confidence—indeed without warning of hard days to come—the prime minister's summary clearly showed that we are on the road to victory both in Europe and in the orient. However, he displayed his usual astuteness in refusing to predict when the European war will end. He couldn't guarantee it would be this year, or yet that it would extend into next year but (just a fillip of cheer) it "may not be so far away."

Confirms Big Three Unity

Of far greater importance than the date of war's end was his assurance that the big three—Britain, Russia and the United States—still are "absolutely united." Indeed, as I see it, this was the outstanding point in his speech.

Unity among these three dominant powers is vital not only to the winning of the war but to peace. A rupture in the partnership likely would mean a third world conflict.

Mr. Churchill assured commons that "none of the ground made good at Moscow or Teheran" has been lost despite disquieting articles in the Soviet press. He might have added that there also have been critical editorials in the American and British press. These rather sharp exchanges have caused no little public concern, and it's good to have the prime minister's reassurance.

With this I think we must link Churchill's insistence that Britain is intensely interested in maintaining Poland's independence—a statement which applies equally to the United States. Now that's vastly important, for I take it to mean that while the western allies recognize that unity among the Big Three is essential to peace, yet this doesn't involve the abject surrender of high principles by any one of the trio. We stand erect.

Answer Quiets Concern

Mr. Churchill was of course answering the fear expressed by some that Russia intends to take over not only the Polish territory she occupied in 1939 but perhaps other Polish territory as well. He asserted his conviction that repeated Moscow declarations for a strong, independent Poland "represent the settled policy of the Soviet Union."

The prime minister confirmed that he and Stalin had agreed at Teheran "upon the need for Poland to obtain compensation at the expense of Germany both in the north and west." This means that the allies have contemplated giving a reconstituted Poland the German province of East Prussia and some territory adjacent to Poland on the west. So at least this much dismemberment of the reich is under consideration.

At the same time Churchill reiterated that the unconditional surrender which has been demanded "does not mean the German people will be enslaved or destroyed. Unconditional surrender means that the victors will have a free hand. It does not mean that they are entitled to behave in a barbarous manner, nor that they wish to blot out Germany from among the nations of Europe."

This presumably was intended to counteract Hitler's propaganda that the allies intend to enslave the Germans and destroy the reich. By instilling such a fear in the mind of the German public, the Nazi dictator hopes to prolong the war and save his own hide.

Funeral Held Today for Wife of Gandhi

By The Associated Press

POONA, India, Feb. 23—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Mohandas K. Gandhi amid sharp press criticism of the government of India for declining to release the wife of the Indian leader from internment before her death.

Gandhi, who long has schooled himself against displaying emotion, wept silently over the bier of his 74-year-old wife who died yesterday. She had shared his confinement since his arrest last August. Her body was cremated in the grounds of the Aga Khan's palace.

LONERGAN MURDER TRIAL IS DELAYED

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—Opening of the trial of Wayne Lonergan charged with the bludgeon slaying of his heiress wife, Patricia, was adjourned today until tomorrow when his counsel failed to appear in court.

When an assistant defense counsel notified the court he had received a telegram from Edward V. Broderick that he was in Toronto, Ont., completing an unfinished investigation and would like postponement of the trial until Feb. 28, General Sessions Judge John J. Freschi announced. "I think his conduct constitutes contempt of court and I shall ask him to answer for it at the conclusion of this trial."

"I have never heard the equal of this in all my experience," he said.

The Canadian born defendant was not present.

Against him stood a charge of murder—that he killed his beautiful, 23-year-old heiress wife Patricia, and left her battered body on a blood-stained bed in their triplex apartment just four months ago tomorrow.

From the cafe society circle will come many of the principal witnesses in the trial—a former showgirl, a magazine publisher, a Rome-born interior decorator and escorts on rounds of night spots.

As it happened, Mrs. Lonergan went to her death only a few hours after she had wined and danced at some of the city's swankiest night clubs.

Marine Captain Peter Elser, former Harvard football star, discovered the tragedy when he arrived at her $350-a-month apartment in fashionable Beekman Hill the next day to keep a dinner appointment.

Police said Patricia had been beaten on the head with heavy antique candlesticks and strangled.

Lonergan, estranged from his wife, was a suspect from the time police learned he had spent the week-end in New York from his RCAF training base at Toronto.

Taken into custody at a boarding house in the Canadian city the day after the slaying, he returned to New York voluntarily and on Oct. 29 District Attorney Frank Hogan announced he had admitted the slaying in a statement.

Lonergan was quoted as saying he beat his wife in a rage over her taunts that he never again would be permitted to see his son Wayne William, now 22 months old.

The U. S. carrier assault on Truk, No. 1 enemy naval base in the central Pacific, accomplished more than the destruction of 19 ships and 201 planes. A Tokyo broadcast said it had impressed the Japanese people more than any other development since the war's outbreak.

Brisk fighting reported on invaded Bougainville in the northern Solomons despite recent occupation of the Green Islands, was seen as an attempt by Japan to bring sizable forces against the strongly-fortified American perimeter.

An allied move in the direction of Madang, Japanese shipping center on the northeast coast of New Guinea, was disclosed with the capture of a village 11 miles northwest of the American beachhead at Saidor.

Radio Tokyo said today enemy surface craft on Monday bombarded Taroa island of Maloelap atoll southeast of American-held Kwajalein following a Sunday aerial assault that kept up the sustained offensive against the Marshalls. Bases still occupied by the Nipponese.

Indian troops captured high points overlooking strategic Ngakyedauk pass in the Mayu hills of Burma. West African forces aided allied assumption of the initiative on the Arkan front by encircling the town of Kyauktaw in the Kaladan valley below Buthedaung.

Chinese fighters were credited with killing more than 400 Japanese in their effort to drive the enemy from the Hukwang valley area of northern Burma.

American fliers blasted Japanese camps and railway communications in northern Burma Monday, New Delhi announced. RAF bombers and fighters scored hits on Japanese-held strongpoints in western Burma, Prome, communications center on the Irrawaddy river, was attacked last night, and heavy bombers raided the port of Akyab on the Bay of Bengal.

He explained that the information was desired as a means of finding possible replacements for registrants presently deferred from workers.

"A registrant deferred because of his agricultural activity or occupation may be deferred only so long as he is necessary to and regularly engaged in such agricultural activity or agricultural endeavor, and until a satisfactory replacement can be obtained," Goble continued.

The director said local draft boards also had been requested to examine all 1-F classifications and report to county agricultural war boards all registrants claiming agricultural experience at the time of receiving physical examinations, but who are not currently employed on farms.

"Those men should be considered for replacements of registrants now deferred," Goble stated.

Ice Jam Causes Flash Flood Near Willoughby

By The Associated Press

PAINESVILLE, O., Feb. 23—A flash flood caused by an ice jam at the mouth of the Chagrin river inundated the homes of an estimated 15 families early today in the Chagrin harbor area near Willoughby, 14 miles west of here.

A coast guard detail from the Fairport station, under Warrant Officer Thomas E. Daly, transported approximately 25 persons in boats from flooded bungalow-type dwellings to a nearly rural tavern.

Mrs. Elin Hood of a Red Cross disaster unit's motor corps reported many evacuees were only nightclothing. Those rescued included a six-month-old boy. The Red Cross issued a call for contributions of dry clothing.

Pope Appeals to Armies Not To Destroy Rome

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 23—Pope Pius XII has appealed to the belligerents to save Rome from destruction by an agreement similar to those which spared Cairo and Athens, according to the Vatican radio.

"Rome still, in spite of the war, is a center of religion," the Pope was quoted as saying. "The belligerents agreed to spare the monuments of Athens and Cairo, and in the same way Rome should be saved. The abbey of Mt. Cassino already has been destroyed."

The broadcast, transmitted last night, was recorded by The Associated Press.

NLRB Agent Hears Bucyrus Labor Suit

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Feb. 23—A labor hearing involving two discharged employes of officials of the Swan Rubber Co. of Bucyrus opened in Crawford county common pleas court yesterday. Sessions are expected to be concluded today in the action resulting from an effort to bring about reinstatement of the discharged employes.

Charges made by the Rubber Workers union through the national labor relations board are that the employes, Louis Cole and Warren Bosworth, were discharged by the company because of union activities. Evidence is being presented by company officials in an effort to prove the workers were discharged because of alleged insubordination and failure to cooperate.

The hearing is being held before R. N. Denham of Washington, trial examiner for the NLRB. Russell Parker and William Murdock, Cleveland lawyers, are representing NLRB.

COMPARE JAPAN TO NAZI BOMB TARGETS

By The Associated Press

HEADQUARTERS OF THE 14th U. S. AIRFORCE, CHINA, Feb. 23—Destruction comparable to that wrought by the allies in western Europe's industrial centers could be relieved against Japan with one-tenth of the plane-strength and bomb-weight, according to an authoritative appreciation available here today.

Information available to the 14th U. S. airforce command, however, suggests a contradiction of the popular pre-Pearl Harbor belief that Tokyo itself could readily be de troyed. Tokyo is a modern city with a great deal of western-type construction and likely would not go up in flames readily.

Moreover, Japan's war potential cannot be broken by attacks on Tokyo it is believed here. The situation calls for attacks on centers of the heavy industry. There—as in Kobe and Osaka—one finds flimsy construction that is an ideal target for incendiaries and blockbusters.

It appears certain the main assault on Japanese production will be aimed directly at homeland factories, rather than at industrial subsidiaries in Manchuria, North Central China, despite the fact Manchuria is virtually a self-contained unit for production and processing of raw materials.

War Loan Drive Over Top Nearly 2 Billions

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—The $14,000,000,000 Fourth War Loan has been oversubscribed by $1,884,000,000—and the figures are not complete. Another week's tabulation of sales remains before a final accounting can be made.

Treasury Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell announced the latest total today, together with a breakdown showing that small purchasers subscribed for an aggregate of $2,565,000,000 in "E" bonds. He expressed confidence the $3,000,000,000 quota for "E" bonds would be met when the final figures are tabulated.

Total purchases by individuals of all types of securities, however, stood at $1,582,000,000, or nearly $1,000,000,000 short of the $5,500,000,000 individual goal.

MOTHER-IN-LAW CHEERS LONG SOUGHT RELIEF!

Had Been "Irregular" for Years!

Have you often despaired of ever finding normal regularity? Then, by all means, read this unsolicited letter:

"For many long years my mother-in-law had suffered from common constipation. She used to take all kinds of pills and medicines but got no lasting relief. Upon starting to use KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, her trouble cleared up. She feels like a new person, she says. She wanted me to tell the world how your product helped her." Mrs. Pauline Bolle, 724 East 160th Street, Bronx, N. Y.

How do scientists explain the apparent "magic" of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN's relief? Simply this: ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of "cellulosic" elements — lack of which in sufficient amounts in the diet is a common cause of constipation! These elements help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and lighten the colonic wastes for easy natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN doesn't work by "purging"—or by "sweeping you out." It is a gentle acting, "regulating" food!

If this is your trouble eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water! See if you don't find the welcome relief you've hoped for! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Lou Boudreau May Be First Baseball Manager Drafted

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 23—Lou Boudreau, the Cleveland Indians' 26-year-old manager, may be the first major league team pilot to be drafted in the present war.

"I'm ready to go—just like the rest of 'em," Lou said at Chicago after his reclassification to 1-A by his Harvey, Ill., draft board.

He has no idea how soon he will be called, the youngest of his league managers and one of the outstanding infielders said today.

Leo Durocher, Brooklyn Dodgers' manager, was rejected in the spring, and the next youngest major league boss is Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox who will be 38 in October.

Boudreau, who has led American league shortstops in fielding since 1940, his first full season in the majors, will be 27 in July. He is married and the father of two children.

The Indians' manager came to the Tribe late in the 1939 season via Buffalo to which he had been optioned. He took over the Indians in 1942.

Ray Mack's decision to remain on his war job, reported three weeks ago, and the possible drafting of Boudreau would break up what sports scribes have called the greatest double play combination in the major leagues. Last year, Boudreau set an American league record for participation in double plays.

Jones, Ruth and Owens Top Sport Scribes' Choices of Outstanding Accomplishments

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK—The three greatest sports achievements of all-time are

1 The grand slam of golf achieved by Bobby Jones in 1930.

2 The great pitching, the greater outfielding and the greatest home run hitting of Babe Ruth.

3. The record running, broad jumping and hurdling of Jesse Owens.

These were the results of a question put to the nation's sports editors by AP Features which said:

"What do you consider the three greatest all-time achievements in American sports?"

The editors responded with votes and columns on various feats and athletes.

1914 Braves Had Supporters

There never was a doubt that Jones and Ruth would be among the top athletes of all-time—they were mentioned on the majority of ballots—but, George Stallings' Boston Braves of 1914 gave Jesse Owens quite a battle for the third spot.

Probably the biggest surprise in the country-wide poll was the lack of votes for Joe Louis' string of boxing successes. Francis Ouimet, who created a sensation in golf at 19 by defeating Ted Ray and Harry Vardon; and Helene Madison, who once held 16 world swimming records, were also ignored.

The more you look at Jones' golf record, the more you are impressed with it. He won the British Amateur and Open and the U. S. Amateur and Open.

In the nine years preceding his retirement in 1930, Bobby played in 12 Open championships. He grabbed three in England, won four in the United States and finished second four times here—in other words, he was in the money 11 out of 12 times.

Don't forget he shot all this golf with a wooden shaft club. The divot diggers use steel shafts now and any one of them will tell you that the difference in shafts means about 10 strokes less a tournament than in the days when Jones was in his prime.

Bobby, now a major in the U. S. Army Air Forces in England, was surprised when he learned in London that American sports editors had voted his "grand slam" as the best sports achievement of all-time.

Glad They Remember

"I'm glad that they remember it after all these years," said Jones. "But it should be easy to duplicate after the war with the expansion of trans-Atlantic air travel.

"All you have to do is develop an amateur who can hold his own with the pros."

Yes, that's all you have to do, Bobby.

Babe Ruth's record is so full of marks, color and versatility, it can never be told in a few words. But all anyone needs to do is to remember these things:

The big fellow hit 714 home runs (including 60 in one year and 113 in two years), batted in 2,209 runs, and held 76 major league al-time records during his 22 years with the Boston Red Sox New York Yankees and Boston Braves.

On top of all that, the Bambino holds a world series record of hurling 29 consecutive innings without allowing a run. Add his $80,000 salary for 1930 and '31, which has never been equalled, and you have achievements plus.

Still Has Six Records

Jesse Owens, third choice of the athletic scribes, still holds six world records in the track book.

The crack Negro runner was a sensation as a schoolboy, then at Ohio State university and later as a member of the last United States Olympic team in 1936.

Owens' records include three he made on May 25, 1935, when as a Buckeye he outfooted all the other Big Tenners. The events and times were 220 yard dash, 20.3; 220-yard low hurdles, 22.6; broad jump, 26 feet, 8¼ inches. He also tied the 100-yard mark of 9.4 the same afternoon.

Then, there was that happy day in Berlin when as an American competitor, Owens won the 100 and 200 meters, the broad jump (all new Olympic records), and he made Hitler feel even worse when he sparked the U. S. relay team to a new record.

Miracle Braves Fourth

Fourth place in the poll went to the Boston Braves, and who among the old time baseball fans will ever forget that gallant rise from the cellar to first place in 1914?

Lou Gehrig, "Iron Man" of baseball, was the fifth choice. Jim Thorpe's track and football career landed him only one vote behind the great Yankee first baseman.

Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds' pitcher who hurled two no-hit, no-run games in a row, and Red Grange, Illinois immortal "galloping ghost" of the gridiron, tied for seventh place in the memories of the sports editors.

Then came that Georgia Peach, Ty Cobb, whose hitting marks still stand in baseball's little red book, Jack Dempsey, and Cornelius Warmerdam, the only person ever to pole vault more than 15 feet. The latter two tied for tenth place.

Bobby Jones, left, golf's famous master of the fairways, is shown in a 1939 pose, the year he scored his "grand slam." Placing behind him in the AP features poll to determine the three top sports achievements of all time were Babe Ruth, shown finishing his familiar swing, and Jesse Owens, breasting the tape.

"Wrestling Thursday"

Another all-star wrestling program has been signed for Marion fans Thursday night at the Armory. Heading the show will be the two hour main event between Jackie Nichols and Sterling "Dandy" Davis. Dandy comes from Houston, Texas and is rated one of the most colorful men in the game. When he isn't wrestling he is designing women's gowns. While in Mexico, he designed all of the President's wife's gowns and he also won the heavyweight championship of Mexico. The one hour semi-final should bring out some very good wrestling as Whitney Walberg signed to meet Paul Berzell. The one fall opener pits Tex Riley against Antone Leone. Bricker To Address Outdoor Writers at Dinner Tonight

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23—The Outdoor Writers Association of America ends its three-day convention tonight with the closing banquet at which Gov. Bricker will be principal speaker.

Seth E. Gordon, director of the Pennsylvania state game commission, urged conservation officials yesterday to concentrate on education of children. Dean John F. Cunningham of Ohio State university's college of agriculture, concurred and said:

"Early impressions are lasting. If we can get our boys and girls to thinking along the lines of practical conservation, we will be making the greatest possible strides."

A national organization of sportsmen was recommended by Kenneth A. Reid of Chicago, executive director of the Izaak Walton League of America, but Don Waters, Ohio conservation commissioner, disagreed. Waters asserted the sportsmen's clubs could do their best work in their local communities, and should not form themselves into statewide or nationwide "pressure groups."

Waters recommended to the committee on readjustments of federal regulations that Ohio have a split season for duck hunting, with that portion of the state north of U. S. route 224 in the northern zone.

The Ohio Outdoor Writers' Association reelected George D. Robey of Columbus as president and Fred Luttenberger of Zanesville as vice president. Morgen Penn of Columbus was renamed secretary-treasurer.

Central Needs Victory Tonight To Snare Junior League Title

Central's basketmen led by Coach Ralph Kelly can win their second 1943-44 athletic title in the three-team city junior high school league by turning back Thomas Edison's cagers at the Armory on West Church street tonight. The varsity game, slated to start at 8 o'clock, will be preceded by a reserve clash at 7.

A win over Edison, in second spot with an even split in four tries, would clinch the 1944 junior high cage title for the Central downtowners. This crown coupled with the loop football bunting which they nailed to their flagpole last fall would give the Central boys an undisputed corner on the city's junior high sports market.

On the other hand, if Edison downs Central, the former outfit will take the lead with three wins and two losses. Central would then have three wins and the same number of setbacks with no more league games to play. Edison, if victorious over Central tonight, could win the championship by defeating Vernon next week.

Central and Edison have had an even break in a pair of previous 1944 clashes, Central taking the first encounter, 19 to 15, and Edison copping the second on the Edison floor earlier this month, 29 to 16.

Coach Kelly of Central, in an attempt to plug the gap left by the injury of Star Jim Nemes, out for the remainder of the season, has elevated two reserve players, Coss and Jim Rea, to the varsity.

City's New Traffic Bureau To Swing Into Operation Friday

Marion's new traffic violations bureau will swing into operation Friday if plans of Police Chief William E. Marks were out on schedule

Workers today were busy making desk space and a cubicle-like "ticket window" for the new bureau, set up by city council to handle the bulk of the city's traffic violations cases.

So far, no one has been selected to operate the bureau, but for the time being the work will be done by members of the police force. Even when the bureau gets a full-time employe, probably a woman, policemen will continue to operate the bureau during the hours she is off the job. It will be open 24 hours a day with police handling it 16 hours a day and the woman worker eight hours the busy part of the day.

In keeping with the new plan, traffic tickets similar to those used in the past but bearing the word "Marion traffic violations bureau" instead of municipal court will be used beginning Friday

How Plan Works

Anyone who finds one of the tickets on his automobile charging some violation of a traffic regulation must report to the traffic bureau within 24 hours or the wheels of the new bureau will start grinding out a series of procedures to bring the offender to task

The first step will be mailing a form letter, reminding the offender that he is due in the bureau within three days. The letter carries a warning that if the summons is ignored, an affidavit will be filed in municipal court and a warrant issued for the offender's arrest.

One of the advantages of the new setup is that it provides automatic handling for all traffic cases except the more serious ones such as reckless driving and speeding, although some of these types of cases may be handled through the bureau. It is expected to make 'ticket fixing' so difficult that virtually every ticket issued to a person within easy driving distance of Marion will produce a fine or at least bring the alleged offender into court

The traffic tickets will carry a list of the standard offenses and the punishment decided by the court for that type of offense, so the offender may look at his ticket and see how much it will cost him to square himself with the traffic bureau. Authorities emphasized that unless the offender can prove himself innocent, he stands a good chance of having to pay the same penalty plus some additional court costs if he fails to respond to the summons on the traffic ticket.

Current Prices

Here are the current "charges" for various traffic offenses, speeding, $25, failure to give right-of-way to fire apparatus, ambulance or police patrol, failure to protect protruding load, $10 each, driving between funeral cars, muffler open, two riding one-seat motorcycle or bicycle, more than three in driver's seat of auto, driving over and breaking sidewalk, hauling dropping or dripping contents, U turn at traffic light, $5 each; washing or repairing cars on the street, disregarding officer's signal, blocking street while unloading unlawful riding, failure to observe stop street, failure to observe traffic lights, $3 each; driving left of center of street, violation of parking meter regulations, parking too near corner intersection, blocking cross walk, parking more than one foot from curb, blocking the street, loading or unloading more than 10 minutes, inadequate lights, parking in a bus zone, $1 each

Barkley Quits As Senate Leader

10 30 a m tomorrow, at which time my resignation as majority leader will be tendered"

Rep. May Shakes Hand

Chairman May (D-Ky), of the house military committee was among the first of a large group of house members to shake Barkley's hand.

"I do not know to what extent the President is engaged in the timber business" Barkley shouted in his dramatic speech "I do know he sells Christmas trees at Christmas time I have no doubt that their sale constitutes annual income

"But, to compare these little pine bushes with a sturdy oak, poplar or cypress that requires a generation of care and nursing to reach the state for sales would be like comparing a cricket with a stallion"

He hit directly at Mr Roosevelt's assertion that the tax bill would benefit "favored groups," declaring that the President had cited "inconsequential" faults

Mentioning the President's labeling as a "special privilege" the bill's provision allowing corporations reorganized in bankruptcy to retain 'high excess profits credit and depreciation basis," Barkley asserted

"As a matter of fact, nobody knows at this time if there would be any loss to the treasury at all through this provision It all depends upon the outcome of litigation now pending in the courts No person can categorically claim that this provision will result in a loss to the treasury"

Senator Bailey (D- N C) predicted immediately that Barkley's resignation would not be accepted at the Democratic caucus tomorrow

"He will be unanimously re-elected by his colleagues," Bailey told reporters.

Bailey told Barkley, "Bravely done"

Shortly after the senate convened at noon Barkley erected a reading stand on his desk and placed a prepared speech on it.

As majority leader, Barkley presumably acted as spokesman for the White House on the senate floor, but it is known he was not the first senator apprised of the President's plan to veto the revenue bill

The Kentuckian is a member of the senate finance committee, which helped write the bill, and was a member of the joint conference committee which shaped it into its final form.

Veto Up Tomorrow

The veto comes before the house for action tomorrow with prospects apparently favoring an overriding of the President There seemed little doubt the senate would follow suit if the house votes to make the bill law despite the President's action.

The repercussions of the unexpected development on the steadily deteriorating relations between the President and congress could not be appraised immediately. Nor could the effect of the break be foreseen in relation to a fourth-term candidacy for Mr. Roosevelt, should he announce he intends to run.

Senators from the Democratic side — administration supporters and foes alike—hurried over Barkley's desk in whispered conversation. To several of them Barkley shook his head sadly; to others he gave the impression he was smiling grim.

Barkley offered the senate [illegible] his resignation immediately after [illegible] the veto appeal to proceed to [illegible] Joseph Robinson of Arkansas, [illegible] Democrat.

It was understood that a caucus of Democratic senators would be held tomorrow to select a new leader.

Senator White of Maine, acting Republican leader, expressed surprise when he was informed of Barkley's reported plans However, the information came from sources which hardly could be doubted

Stern and purposeful, Barkley began his speech

"On yesterday," he said "the President of the United States sent to the house of representatives and indirectly to the senate a message vetoing the tax bill recommended by both houses of congress after six or eight months of consideration

"I should have preferred to discuss this veto message on a proposal to pass it over the presidential veto But, not knowing what action the house will take, it seems best to discuss it now.

"The President says he regrets having to veto the bill in the public interest"

Barkley said the President in his veto message, made an obvious reference to Wendell L. Willkie when he said persons in our national life have advocated a stiffer tax program than that of the President

He termed Willkie "the up-to-date Haley's comet darting across the heavens hither and yon in an array of figures that normal people cannot understand."

"I cannot imagine whether this celestial nomad has frightened the President into using a figure quite as fantastic, although not as large," Barkley said

In order to "belittle the amount of revenue" anticipated from the tax bill, Barkley continued, "the President has resorted to one of the most unjustifiable methods of calculation possible to conjure up"

Social Security Freeze

Barkley pointed out that he had personally opposed "freezing" social security pay roll taxes at their present level of one per cent each on employer and employe, rather than allow them to double this year, but that the freeze was voted overwhelmingly

However he said, he always had taken the position that these taxes were "a sacred fund" for the sole purpose of providing social security benefits

"I did not contend then, and I would not now or at any other time vote to include the tax merely for the purpose of letting the treasury use it as revenue to carry on the ordinary expenses of government," he declared

He said the treasury itself had estimated the vetoed bill would yield $2,184,000,000 in added revenue, while the staff of the joint senate and house committee on revenue had put the figure at $2,315,200,000

A faithful party man, Barkley has stood up doggedly for almost all administration proposals—until today

His term as senator expires next January and he is expected to seek renomination and reelection.

Red Roosevelt Backing

Barkley rode to the majority leadership with President Roosevelt's help. His opponent for the post was the late Pat Harrison of Mississippi The President made public at that time a letter which started "My Dear Alben" and senate Democrats took that as a White House nod in favor of the Kentuckian

Barkley said the President's statements concerning congress' action on freezing social security taxes were "simply not an accurate statement of the facts and everybody knows it"

His voice rising across the quiet, and attentive senate, the majority leader denied Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that congress is to blame for complicated tax laws

"No man could have made that statement who has sat in the tax committees of the United States senate" Barkley shouted "If it were made by anyone who ever sat on those committees it would be a deliberate misstatement in order to place on congress the blame for universal dissatisfaction" over complex tax laws

"Congress is to blame for the complexities to the extent—and only to the extent—to which it has accepted the advice of the treasury department and of so-called tax experts who have sat in on every tax measure I can remember"

Treasury Complications

Every time congress has attempted to simplify the tax laws or tax-reporting form he said, the treasury experts have brought back 'language so complicated that neither Solomon nor all the wise men of the east could understand it or interpret it"

Shouting at the top of his voice, Barkley called the President's veto message

"A deliberate and calculated assault upon the honesty and integrity of every member of the legislature of the United States"

He said the President deliberately sought to belittle congress

"I am one of those who pleaded with the President not to veto this bill," he declared "I not only advised him not to veto it, I implored him

"I did not then believe, nor do I now believe that the veto he has sent to congress is just and

"I make no apology for that"

"Other members may do as they please" Barkley shouted "I do not propose to take this unjustifiable assault lying down"

Vice President Wallace presided over the tense session as Barkley referred with biting sarcasm to the President's citation of his own experience with timber in opposing a provision in the tax bill to treat income from sales by a timberman from his own land as capital gain rather than annual income

Bricker Sees Act of Sen. Barkley As "Awakening" Sign

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23—Governor John W Bricker, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, declared in a formal statement today the resignation of Senator Alben W. Barkley as senate majority leader indicated that a "reawakened congress is taking the rightful place"

The Governor's statement follows

"I am glad the leadership of the Democratic party realizes what we have been saying on our side for a long time. The President is playing politics with domestic matters in the midst of a war His politics is continually obstructing an all-out war effort.

This is the first time that the president of the United States has set out to belittle congress or play politics with a revenue program It also is the first time that $1,300,000,000 ever was spoken of by a president as a 'very inadequate sum'

'The time has come when the American people, again must realize the value of a dollar and that on first effort should be to win the war It is gratifying that a reawakened congress is taking the rightful place'

AIR AND RAIL STOCKS GAIN

But General Run of Industrial Stocks Move in Narrow Range.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—Aircrafts and rails again moved forward in today's stock market as the general run of industrial leaders drifted within a narrow range.

Advances ranged from fractions to around a point in these favored groups. Volume was moderate.

War shares, apart from the aircrafts and carriers, showed little response to Prime Minister Churchill's cautious handling of the question as to how much longer the war would last, but his general appraisal of the situation in his report to the house of commons made a good impression in the financial sector.

Stocks in better territory included Douglas, Consolidated Vultee, Boeing, United Aircraft and Goodyear.

Bonds were irregular with selling in the recently strong reorganization rails. Commodities were narrow.

A point of interest with market followers in connection with President Roosevelt's veto of the $2,315,000,000 tax bill concerned corporations which were believed to be in line for benefits if the measure had received presidential approval. Analysts placed reorganization railroads in this category. It was also suggested that redrafting of the bill might be helpful to concerns which had been most affected by the reduction of the invested capital credit base and increased excess profits taxes.

Group Asks Radio To Help Curb Delinquency

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 — The Women's National Radio committee, which annually makes program awards in particular categories, has been conducting a study on how it believes radio can aid in meeting the juvenile delinquency problem. The result is four suggestions to networks and stations.

One suggestion would have "radio figures especially celebrated for the wholesomeness of their appeal, for example Kate Smith and Ginny Simms, address messages to parents stressing the importance of keeping alive the right kind of home relationship." The committee also urges special spot announcements advising young people on how to keep normally busy and would have more forum discussions of juvenile problems.

Frank Sinatra's first try at full length drama broadcasting as the lead in the CBS Radio Theater's "Make Up and Live" met varied listener reaction. That part of the role which turned his voice into song permitted his usual full expression, but his speaking characterization, which was for most of the hour, did not have the same smoothness. He seems to be improving, however, as he does more microphone acting.

AIR RAIDS

stroyed, one by a Canadian intruder, over its base in France, the air ministry said.

11th Raid in February

The assault on London was the 11th this month. The attacks came in two waves over the east and south coast. They converged on London and then spread out.

The main cargo of the raiders was incendiaries, perhaps many of them the new explosive type the Germans say they now are using.

Anti-aircraft shell fragments came down like metallic hailstones, kicking up sparks from the pavement and clanking on rooftops.

A number of schools, including a famous one in the London area, were among the buildings wrecked.

An entire family of six was killed in one house. Next door three children were killed and another was injured. A number of persons were injured in a nearby village where several cottages were demolished.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

A Sequel to Pitfalls of Love.

By ADELE GARRISON

IF EXPERIENCE had not warned me that Hugh Grantland's present errand was of great importance, and that he was under tremendous tension, I would have known it from his terse questions, his abrupt manner, and his total disregard of the usual social amenities.

For Hugh Grantland, major in the United States Army, has no superior—and few equals—in his charm of manner, his knowledge of social usage and his deference to women. And never, in the five-past patience of Dicky's niece, Mary Tenham, now starring on Broadway in her famous father-in-law's production of my play, had he turned it out more emphatically than in the old days when Mary in other circumstances pressure for which I had longed her ears, had whispered: "He's carrying a torch for you, Auntie Madge, big enough to light the great White Way, if they should turn every electric switch off!"

Grantland Tense

But except for that flicker in his eyes at my mention of Dicky's name, and whereabouts, there had been no indication of anything in his manner except haste and tension so great as to make him appear the army officer demanding attention instead of a man coming after years of absence to a home where he often had been entertained as a family friend.

"I will send Katie for Jim immediately," I said, "and will take Faith to her grandmother. That will be the quickest, for I will be able to give Mother Graham a word of warning which will keep her in her room. Otherwise she would be down here at once."

"I remember," he said, smiling again. "Please have Katie tell Jim to come immediately to the car out here, and warn them both to keep their mouths shut no matter what questions are asked them."

Madred Stopped

"I'll do that," I said, but as I turned briskly away, he stopped me.

"One thing more," he said. "Have you a time table? I want to know the last train from Bridgehampton to New York tonight."

"I can tell you that without looking," I said. "It is engraved on my memory for I have had to take it: 6:05 from Bridgehampton and change at Jamaica."

I regretted my loquacity when he said "Thank you," tersely, without the glimmer of a smile, and I went into action without any more persiflage. I went up to Katie, took the softly whimpering Faith into my arms, and repeated to my wide-eyed housekeeper, with emphasis, the message Hugh Grantland had just given to me.

Then I spoke to my little girl. "Everything's all right, Faith. Mummie will take you up to Granzie."

Tears Dried

"All right," Faith answered, her tears drying by magic, for she dearly loves her autocratic grandmother, sadly indulgent to her, however. Then she wiggled from my arms to the floor, and took my hand with a triumphant: "I'm a big girl. I want to walk," just as Major Grantland's imperative voice sounded from the doorway:

"Put that child down. She's too heavy for you to carry."

My first impulse was to snatch my child up again.

Then common sense told me, first, that Faith undoubtedly would scream a justifiable protest if I did second, that, after all, nobody had heard an impertinent command except himself and me, and third, that I must not hinder by a second the evident emergency at my door.

So I contented myself with throwing back over my shoulder as my comment: "I had no intention of carrying her!" as I hurried to Faith along the corridor and to my mother-in-law's room where I knocked and entered immediately.

Mother-in-law Surprised

My stately mother-in-law turned in surprise from her bed which she was making. She has insisted on taking care of her own room since the war-stringency of help, and does everything else that my knowledge of her frailty will permit her to do. Quickly I broke into hurried explanation.

"I must ask your help, Mother," I said. "I don't know what it is all about, but Major Hugh Grantland just arrived with a friend, who is now out in a car at the side entrance, and he says they must stay here for a few hours. He asked about the people in the house, and says all of you are safe to trust except Faith, who must be kept out of sight for fear of her possible prattling. Will you keep her with you until I come back?"

And then Faith looked at me in puzzled questioning.

"Why must I be kept out of sight, Mummy?" she asked.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Health of Country

If the nutrition of the country, as reflected in the number of people who still need reducing in spite of wartime rationing, as reported on in this column yesterday, is good, that fact is emphasized in the general health of the country.

"Despite the strains of wartime living and flurry of influenza at the end of the year, the health of the American people during 1943 has been at a high level," according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company's information service.

There has been a small rise in mortality in the industrial department in 1943 over the record year 1942, but when the number of inexperienced workers in new forms of industry and the hazards of military training, which involves millions are considered, this is not surprising or alarming. And it is more than made up for in the decline of automobile accidents. There were 23,000 fatalities from this source in 1942, 5,000 fewer than in 1942, and 17,000 fewer than the all-time maximum of 39,981 deaths in 1941. Perhaps it would be a good idea to extend gasoline rationing indefinitely.

No single catastrophe of 1943 approached the mortality of the Boston night club fire in 1942, which claimed 492 lives. Increased travel has naturally caused an increase in accidental injuries and deaths from this cause.

The health record of childhood diseases is good. Infant mortality showed new lows. The death rate from diarrhoeal diseases, formerly the great baby killer, is lower than in pre-war years, and it has been going down by leaps for decades.

Childbirth mortality among mothers has also gone lower than ever before.

The influenza epidemic and virus pneumonia proved not as dangerous as they sounded although there was some increase in mortality over the year before. Since the sulfa drugs are not effectual against these organisms, this is not surprising. In other respiratory diseases, where the sulfa drugs do work, the conditions were improved.

Tuberculosis Downward

The tuberculosis situation is very encouraging. During World War I the death rate from tuberculosis for the first time in 50 years, interrupted its steady downward course to show a rise. In 1918, continuing the trend of 1917 and 1942, it reached a new all-time low. The hope that this ancient enemy of mankind once the "Captain of the Host of Death" can be driven from the earth is not without practical foundation.

Chronic diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys, as well as cancer and diabetes, have increased somewhat. Perhaps this is due to the unavoidable reduction in the amount of medical attention available. But these diseases have been showing a steady increase for years. Best explanation is that more people live long enough to get them.

"I am optimistic about the nation's health in 1944," said Dr. Louis T. Dublin of the Metropolitan Insurance company. "We have abundant food supplies and our public health and medical facilities are well organized and operating efficiently."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Feb. 24

IN MAY matters which either are of a routine performance and maintenance or short duration and attitudes toward you, which may involve personal interests or habits, together with your temperament, in the form of moods and impulses, endeavors, associations and acquaintances are under a fairly favorable influence today. Be careful, however, of the tendency to be overly optimistic and hopeful and have to pay sudden disagreements, with subtle and sinister as well as downward drags to be circumspectly avoided. Use planets inclined of force where major issues are involved. Aimless work and with determination, surprising developments may be forseen. Adherence to the order is needed toward gradual attainment of fitness.

Those born today are likely to be constructive by a year in which decisive courses and concentrated effort is rewarding, new or critical readjustments of minds and personality are involved. They may be advised caution and diplomacy of a personal, financial and personal nature. It may be necessary to approach superiors, employers or other influential persons with diplomacy, patience and tact. Be careful not to force issues or antagonize others. There may be subtlety and strife as well as opportunity to mingle with surroundings and restraint shun strife and be alert to accident, explosives and be attentive to all public rules and regulations. Be wary as to fraud and deception.

A child born on this day while eventful, successful and fortunate, may be subject to sudden adversity, loss and reverses. Prudent actions and vigilance may avert many troubles and opposition in life.

Women pilots were first employed by the ferrying division of the Air Transport Command, Army Air Forces, in September, 1942.
